Courtesy Du Pont Company

Vera Maxwell. Dressmaker suit in plain weave of 35% "Orlon" acrylic fiber, rayon and acetate in yarn dyed effect by Duplan. "Orlon" gives the fabric improved wrinkle resistance, shape retention and durability.

This is one of more than thirty costumes of "Orlon" shown at recent Du Pont press preview. Luxurious hand, warmth with light weight, comfort and easy care, are qualities stressed for apparel, its main use. "Orlon" has the most wool-like hand of any fiber in some weaves, the most silk-like in others. A plant for "Orlon" staple will produce 30,000,000 pounds a year.
