

E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Delaware

Hagley Powder Yard.

A pair of Rolling Mills or Wheel Mills in Upper Hagley. The larger mill was originally used for other purposes, may be a "Dust Mill" (the Dust Mills were superseded by the Rolling Mills). As it was necessary to increase the output of the Hagley Works the smaller mill was built thus adding another block of Rolling Mills and increasing the daily production accordingly.

These Mills are still standing and are located just below the Graining Mill (which is also still standing at least the walls are) in Upper Hagley as shown in pictures "A" & "B". They are opposite the Press Room of Upper Hagley.

The workman in my boyhood days designated this block of Rolling Mills as "The Lady and the Elephant"

John W. Hackler

July 29, 1940