COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIP STUDENTS

GUESTS AT CAVALCADE OF AMERICA BROADCAST

Pictured with Paul Lukas, radio, stage and screen star, at the Cavalcade of America broadcast in Radio City, New York, on Monday, February 23, are the following Columbia University students, all from Little Rock. Left to right, they are: Robert D. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Kennedy, formerly of Little Rock; Harold E. White, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. White, 4321 Woodlawn Street; Mr. Lukas, and Archie L. Hewett, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hewett, 421 East 21st Street.

The program featured an original radio play, "This Way To Tomorrow," and starred Mr. Lukas in the role of one of Columbia University's most famous scholarship students, Professor Michael Pupin, the noted physicist and electronic inventor.

Both Mr. White and Mr. Hewett are in their freshmen years at Columbia, and Mr. Kennedy is a sophomore. All were awarded scholarships to Columbia after graduating from the Little Rock Senior High School.
